User first lands on site and chooses to sign up

logo

login

sign up

user inputs account credentials on the left, and begins building basic profile on the right

create username:

create password:

Input email:

Select Career Field V (dropdown)

Select Interests V (dropdown)

Select other parameters V (dropdown)

Select other parameters V (dropdown)

Select other parameters V (dropdown)

user fills out detailed sections of their profile

about you: [illegible placeholder text]

recent work: [illegible placeholder text]

update profile

User is sent to choices page and given a job to consider, they choose to one-click apply because they like the offer

click red for "not interested"

click green for "interested"

Company Name,
Job Title

Qualifications: [illegible]

Pay: [illegible]

About Company: [illegible]

About Job: [illegible]

(user clicks here, selecting "interested")

Resume and profile sent to company for consideration

Next, user is shown another job. This time they don't really like the offer. Instead of selecting that they'd like to apply, they instead select that they are not interested.

click red for "not interested"

click green for "interested"

Company Name,
Job Title

Qualifications: *********** * * **************

Pay: *******

About Company: ***** * * **************** **
****
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * **** ***************************
 * * O **************** **** *
** ************* ** * **** ***************************
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * **** ***************************
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * ****

About Job: ** ** **********************************
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * **********************************
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * **** ***************************
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * **** ***************************
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * **** ***************************
************************** * * **** **************** **** *
** ************* ** * ****

(user clicks here, selecting "not interested")

Now user is able to provide feedback about the company. What they didn't find appealing. This will help improve their experience and maybe help companies know what people are looking for. You may also choose to not submit feedback forms. There could be a function to turn it off entirely if you go back to the profile section.

Feedback Form

Enter Reasons Why: ******** * * *********** * * ** *
****** * ** ** ********* ** *** * *** ****
**************************** ** * ** ************************

cancel

Submit Feedback

User clicks "cancel" and will be sent back

User clicks "submit feedback" and company will receive it. It will also be saved to improve the app